CNLD Testing & Therapy offers comprehensive testing services including neuropsychological, psychological, learning disability, ADHD and autism evaluations. We also provide therapy and counseling services for individuals (child, adolescent and adults), non-traditional relationships and entire families, as well as parent guidance. Executive Function/ADHD coaching is also provided by clinicians and educators using a curriculum-based program. Educational advocacy is available for our clients with an experienced professional who turns intervention plans into action for home, school and work. Our clinicians are comfortable working with anyone regardless of their gender, sexual orientation or identity, race, religion, and ethnicity. We are experienced in working with LGBTQIA+ populations. We work with professionals in the local community who offer tutoring and educational therapy, assistive technology assessments/recommendations, speech & language therapy, occupational therapy, physical therapy, psychiatric consultation and neurological evaluation.
