CNLD offers comprehensive assessment services including neuropsychological, psychological, learning disability, ADHD and developmental evaluations. Our clinic also provides therapy services for individuals (adult, teen and child) and families, executive function coaching for improving study skills, organization and work efficiency, as well as parent guidance. Case management, advocacy and treatment planning to implement educational recommendations and interventions, along with school consultation and staff development also are available. We work with other professionals in the local community who offer specialized tutoring for: learning difficulties; assistive technology assessments/recommendations; advocacy/legal support for clients; speech and language therapy; memory training; occupational and physical therapy; mental health interventions; and medical services.
